Is it possible to sit quietly without seeking? To allow everything to appear as it is? To listen without labeling? To question without scanning for answers? To see anything intimately without separation? To move from “not knowing” rather than from the mind’s endless attempts to know and to control? To clearly see the ways conditioned thinking hides truth?

Opening to living Presence allows us to experience the wholeness of being. Join us for a three-day retreat of silent sitting, inquiry, listening and looking from a Presence that makes no demands, but opens us to the wonder of the present moment.

*Empty space does not resist the free movement of infinite happenings.
In listening, speaking, and acting out of this common ground, we can awaken to the joy of wholeness—our true home.
--Toni Packer*

Dorothy Hunt will facilitate this retreat. She is the spiritual director of Moon Mountain Sangha, invited to teach by Adyashanti in 2004; retired psychotherapist; author of Only This!, Leaves from Moon Mountain, and Ending the Search: From Spiritual Ambition to the Heart of Awareness.
